What are these works of darkness of which St. Paul speaks? By the word darkness, the Sacred Scriptures designate whatever is opposed to God and his holy law. God is light, the opposite of God is darkness; hence, Satan is called in Holy Writ the prince of darkness, as the adversary of God, and in order to distinguish him from the Angels of light, whose everlasting society he wilfully forfeited. He who remains faithful to God, walks in the light; he who deserts God and transgresses his holy commandments, walks in darkness, is the follower of Satan, the prince of darkness, and a citizen of that kingdom which is justly called the kingdom of darkness. The Son of God plainly tells us this: I am the light of the world; he that followeth me, walketh not in darkness, but shall have the light of life. (John 12: 8.) Works of darkness, therefore, are all human actions, contrary to the law of God; works of darkness are all the mortal sins which man commits voluntarily, whether in the will only or in deed; works of darkness are all the omissions of the good which a Christian is bound to do; works of darkness, in fine, are all those actions which shun the light and seek to hide themselves in obscurity and gloom, and which cannot stand before the piercing eye of that interior, impartial judge - the conscience. All these works of darkness, my brethren, we are...
